Apprehension in the German Empire that William II May Also Die of Cancer.

Berlin Correspondence Philadelphia Telegraph. For the moment, also, Germany is possessed by a wild fever of military enthusiasm. While the aged monarch, William I, continued to reign, it was felt that war was not possible. With Frederick III Germany had a ruler who was a most determined opponent to all idea of war: but with the present young Emperor the military spirit is again in the ascendant, and this certainly renders the situation dangerous. His royal progress through Russia, Austria and Italy also suggests military alliances that seem to promise easy victories. Therefore young military men are all in great excitement, and seem to imagine that their young Emperor-King is going to lead them all to glory in a very short time. Unfortunately for them, and for mankind at large, the real truth is not published. Of course, in the German press any attempts criticism are altogether out of question; but even in the English journals we have sycophantic accounts that are not creditable to what should be the impartial and enlightened guides of public opinion. We are made to believe that the young Emperor William distinguishes himself, shows himself a great and powerful monarch, and is received with unanimous applause. Such is not the case. Undoubtedly, so far, the Emperor has displayed certain kingly qualities; has given proof of some strength of will and some aptitude for work. But how long will this last! We are told of his manly presence, but we do not find mention of the ominous cotton-wool pads that fill his ears to keep the outer air away from the ulcers that at any moment may affect his brain. Then there are the racking neuralgic pains that keep him awake all night and make him get up at untold hours in the morning. On such occasions he seeks to forget his suffering by making surprise visits to the barracks, where he does not fail to vent the ill humor caused by pain on any one whom he may find at fault. These are the freaks of a sickly man. Who shall measure the political importance of such sickness? Who shall say how soon this young life may be cut off and then what will, what can, happen? The German people cheer for the Kaiser; they are taught that all authority, all greatness, all power, should be concentrated in the one hand of the Kaiser, and nature, as if to prove how false, how wrong, is such a doctrine, strikes both father and son with grave constitutional maladies, so that the one could only reign a few months. These are considerations which are forgotten by the gushing writers who describe the royal pageants, and yet who shall say but that they are not much more important than

The Parnell Commission Again Convenes and Begins to Hear Testimony.

LONDON, Nov. 13 .- At a meeting of the Parnell commission, to-day, the presiding justice intimated that the court's decision in the matter of the disclosure of documents was that all the documents which the Times possessed, including even these which the Times's solicitor thought epurious, should be disclosed, in order to assist in the search for the truth. Sir Charles Russell, counsel for the Parnellites, stated that he had received several threatening letters.

Justice Hannen remarked that he, also, and probably others engaged in the case, had received similar letters. The intimidation of witnesses, he said, was so certain that precautions must be taken not to allow the premature disclosure of their names.

The taking of evidence in relation to outrages was then proceeded with. James Mannion, one of the witnesses called, declared himself both a Fenian and a member of the National League, He said he had taken part in several outrages and had gone on moonlight expeditions. He knew no moonlighter who was not also a member of the league.

Peter Flaherty, a farmer of Galway, testified that he was a moonlighter, and was not ashamed to acknowledge it. He was perfectly ready to act with the moonlighters again. Edward Flannigan said that he had been in America since 1879. He had been present at numerous league meeting at Pittsburg and New York, at which Stephen J. Meaney had presided. He said that Meaney had collected funds for the purpose of buying firearms for use in Ireland. The court the adjourned.

High Salaries in England.

LONDON, Nov. 13 .- In debate in the Commons on the estimates in connection with the Supreme Court of Judicature Mr. Louis J. Jenzings (Conservative) moved to reduce the appropration by a considerable sum.

Lord Randolph Churchill approved the proposed reduction. He said the money squandered on court officials was a public scandal and a national disgrace, amounting to malversation of the public money on a large scale, the new departments of justice recently added to the machinery consisting of nothing but lawyers. It was absolute brigandage on the tax-payers. Before the government asked them to vote this money, let them obtain a pledge that these visible evils would receive earnest and immediate

Attorney-general Webster deprecated Lord Randolph Churchill's executive criticism as calculated to excite the imagination of the country. The government neither winked at favoritism in the matter of appointments nor showed indifference toward the effecting of reductions, but it could not alter salaries immediately. He promised that attention would be paid to the recommendations of the committee.

Mr. Jennings's motion to reduce the estimates was rejected by a vote of 148 to 129.

GOVERNMENT MONEY STOLEN.

Fifteen Hundred Dollars in Silver Abstracted

in a Mysterious Manner. WASHINGTON, Nov. 13 .- Some irregularity has been discovered in connection with the transfer of silver dollars from the mint at New Orleans to Washington for storage in the large new vault in the court-yard of the Treasury building, which has resulted in the loss of $1,500. The loss was discovered last week, but did not become known outside the department until today. Treasury officials refuse to speak of the matter, and very little is known beyond the facts already stated. The silver was shipped by Adams Express Company, and the loss will probably fall upon it, unless it can be proved that the packages containing the money were tampered with before they came into its possession. The money was shipped in wooden boxes containining two canvass bags, with $1,000 in each bag. The boxes are carefully sealed before they leave the mint for delivery to the express company and are carefully guarded from that time until their delivery at the treasury. They are therefore under surveillance from the time they leave the mint until they are delivered to the agents of the United States treasury. The shipments average $500, 000 a day and the silver already placed in the vault amounts to over $30,000,000. All this coin was brought from Philadelphia and New Orleans, but mostly from Philadelphia. The shipments from New Orleans were begun only a few weeks ago, and it is in these that the discrepancy occurred. So far as known only two boxes were tampered with. In one of them the entire contents of one bag, amounting to $1,000, were removed and replaced with bird shot, In the other box only about half the contents of one of the bags, or about $500, was taken, and shot and pieces of lead were substituted.

The robbery was not discovered until the bags were weighed at the treasury. The scales used in weighing the silver over-balanced when these bags were placed on them, and a hurried examination of their contents disclosed the fraud which had been perpetrated. These bags were part of different consignments, and are believed to be all that have been robbed. The agent of the express company was at once notified and the treasury naturally refused to accept the bags. A treasury official who knows says the loss, so far, does not exceed the amount stated. $1,500, and that the responsibility for it rests entirely between the express company and the officer at New Orleans who handled these particular boxes. The matter has been in the hands of the United States secret service officers and the detectives of the company for nearly a week, but, so far as known, is as much a mystery now as it was the day the robbery was discovered.

The President Remits a Boy's Sentence, WASHINGTON, Nov. 13 .- Cadet Trabor Norman, fourth class, United States Military Academy, has been found guilty by a court martial of knowingly making a false statement to his superior officer, and sentenced to dismissal from the service. It appears that the cadet having been discovered visiting in cadet barracks, false ly stated that he had permission from the officer in charge to make the visit for the purpose of getting an algebra. The proceedings having been submitted to the President, he indorsed them as follows: "This cadet, at the time o the commission of the offense of which he has been convicted, had been in the military academy but a very short time, and I can easily see that the suddenness with which he was called upon to exonerate himself from a violation of rules, and the lack of a quick appreciation of the grave fault of untruthfulness, presented a temptation which it was difficult for him to resist. Absolute truthfulness is a necessary element of manly character and an infallible test of genuine soldierly disposition. While, therefore, those attending our military academy should distinctly understand that, while willful lying and prevarication will not be tolerated under the discipline adopted for their regulation, still, in view of all the facts surrounding this particular case, and in consideration of the certificates of the cadet's good character which have been presented to me and the punishment he has already suffered, I have determined to remit the sentence of the court-martial dismissing Cadet Traber Norman from the service of the United States." Sackville and His Family. tion committee.

CHICAGO, Nov. 13. - The interesting feature of the tenth annual meeting of the American Clydes. dale Association, this evening, was the report of the executive committee upon the Clydesdale interest. In part it reads: "The prevailing high prices of recorded animals confirms the foresight of breeders in selecting the Clydesdale as the best type of an attractive and serviceable draft horse, and as long as the home and foreign demand for representative specimens of the breed so largely exceeds the supply. there is danger in not using the knife on the exceptional shorts that are not up to the high standard that intelligent importers and breeders make every effort to sustain. One of the most encouraging features indicative of the permanency and profits of the business of breeding Clydesdale horses in America, is the large and rapidly increasing number of small breeders, owning one to a dozen recorded mares. It is a matter of congratulation that there are more pure Clydesdale horses bred each year in America than of all other draft breeds of horses combined." The following officers were elected: President, S. P. Clark, St. Cloud, Minn.; vicepresident, John C. Huston. Blandinsville, Ill.; secretary, Col. Chas. F. Private Ira J. Chase the Recipient of an Enthusiastic Ovation at Wabash.

The Governor-Elect of Illinois Honored by His Neighbors-Much Noise at Terre Haute. Crawfordsville and Other Places.

At Wabash.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WABASH, Nov. 13 .- The Republicans of this section had a grand jubilee here to-day and this evening in honor of the great victory of last Tuesday. Delegations began coming in immediately after dinner, and the city was soon packed with jubilant humanity. Nearly every person was armed with a horn, some over six feet long, and the din was frightful. Added to this all, the factory whistles were blown at intervals. Just before 3 o'clock the Union Veteran League marched to the Cincinnati, Wabash & Michigan depot to meet Lieuenant-governor elect Ira J. Chase. Mr. Chase received a great ovation. Amid the cheers of the veterans be was lifted high in the air and carried to a carriage, where he was almost torn to pieces in the mad desire of the multitude to shake his arm. Then followed a grand parade, with Mr. Chase and party in the lead. This evening a big delegation arrived from Pern, including many ladies, and a monster torch-light procession is in progress. Business houses and residences are profusely decorated and illuminated. One of the features of the parade to-day was the appearance of Mr. George Horton, agent of the C., W. & M. railway, and a prominent Democrat, seated on a charger behind Simon Cook, one of the marshals of the day. Mr. Horton was paying an election bet. Pandemonium at Private Joe Fifer's Home.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Nov. 13 .- The maddest, merriest time that political changes have ever brought to this city the jollification by the Republicans, tonight, over the Republican triumph, especially that of Mr. Fifer, for Governor. It was originally intended to be merely a local affair, confined to the city, but the county demanded their share in it, and many delegations came in from surrounding counties. Several bands came with large crowds from neighboring towns on the morning trains, and spent the day in serenading Private Joe, Congressman Rowell, Senator-elect Kerrick and the Republican newspaper offices. During the afternoon a large assemblage congregated in the street in front of Mr. Fifer's law office, cheering and yelling for Governor-elect, until he came down stairs and stood upon the steps leading to the street. After a wild, enthusiastic repetition of cheers and yells Mr. Fifer spoke a few words of thanks and congratulations. They next called out Congressman J. H. Rowell, who made a brief and singing speech. Mr. Fifer's office was next captured, and during the afternoon hundreds called to pay their respects to the next Governor. The noise and uproar at night outranked pandemonium. It was a free-for-all carnival of noise, music, fire-works, bonfires and uproars, comicality and merriment. The most novel and ridiculous costumes were seen. Pantaloons and coats and hats painted red were seen by the thousand. There was no order whatever, and none was expected or desired. The utmost good nature prevailed, many Democrats joining in the racket and yelling madly for Private Joe. For two hours or more the town was ablaze with rockets, Roman candles and bonfires, while the uproar was beyond all description in its novelty of origin and general effect. In the midst of the tumult a barber was standing in a wagon cutting off the long gray locks of Captain Black, a Republican who, in 1884, swore he would let his hair grow until a eccial to the Indianapoits Journal CRAWFORDSVILLE, Nov. 13.—The Republicans of this place have been celebrating for a week and ended it to-day in a monster demonstration that commenced to make noise at 6 o'clock in the morning and kept it up until midnight. Al the Republicans wore victorious emblems of some kind about their clothes, the most popular being expressive cards stuck in bats. In the procession was an eagle captured by Henry Alfrey, who has named it "Ben Harrison." It has been to a number of Republican rallies, and now Mr. Alfrey has presented it to the Republicans of Montgomery county, who will on to-morrow send it to Gen. Benj. Harrison. Tin horns were very numerous, and upon a dray was a large horn worked by a bellows. Upon one wagon there were several men with red faces, labeled "United States Marshals." Among the numerous banners there was one representing Cleveland fishing. which caused loud hurrabs as it passed along. The procession was very long, consisting of two bands, two drum corps, decorated wagons, students, a regiment of school-girls with horns, veterans, horsemen, men on foot, 1840 voters carriages, Cory's "1840 cannon," and several wagons representing business houses. Delegations were in attendance from other places, and it was the unanimous verdict of everybody that such a jollification has never been held in this city. After the procession was through marching, Col. J. A. Bridgland, of Indianapolis, and Hon. M. D. White addressed the throng at the court-house. The music of the tin horn was equal to the emergency, however, and the speakers were almost drowned out with noises. At 7:30 o'clock the procession was again formed, and marched through the principal streets, with the usual amount of noise. Speeches were made by several persons at the court-house, and along toward midnight the poise died away, and the great celebration was

At Dana.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. DANA, Nov. 13. - Dana is full of happy Republicans, to-night, expressing their satisfaction at the result of the election. Everything obtainable that would make a noise was brought into use. Horns by the hundreds, in every imaginable key, big bells and little bells, drums, tin pans, horse-fiddles and anvils are making a pandemonium. A number of circular saws drawn up and down the streets in a wagon, each in-dustriously pounded on by an able-bodied man, is one of the features of the occasion. Twenty young ladies in white, each representing a Harrison State, paraded with banners and torches. The jubiles ended with a fine display of fireworks. The best feature of the occasion is the universal good feeling, Democrats apparently as happy and as noisy as Republicans.

At Monticello, Ill. Special to the Indianapolis Journal MONTICELLO, Nov. 13 .- The Republicans of Piatt county will hold a jubilee and ratification meeting at Monticello on Saturday. One thousand tin horns, roman candles, and rockets have been ordered. There will be thirty eight rounds fired, one for every electoral vote given Harrison above the number required to elect him in the Electoral College. Governor J. W. Fifer, Judge T. F. Tipton, of Bloomington, and Hon. M. W. Mathews, Senator-elect, of Urbana, will be present and address the mass-meeting.

At Hartford City.

Special to the Indianapolis Journa. HARTFORD CITY, Nov. 13 .- To-night the city is ablaze with enthusiasm over the triumphant election of Harrison and Morton. Five thousand people are in town with brass bands, tin horns and every conceivable thing calculated to make a noise, and as a consequence pandemoni-um reigns supreme. A brass band, followed by a rough coffin, and playing a funeral dirge is parading the streets amid the tooting of horns, the ring of bells and the booming of cannon. The Republicans are in the zenith of happiness.

At Galveston. GALVESTON, Nov. 13 .- This place held a jollification meeting last night over the result of the election. Numerous glee clubs, a colored brass band, and thousands of shouting Republicans were present. A. N. Grant, of Kokomo, and the Hon. J. N. Loop, Representative from Howard County, were the speakers. The nomination of Geo. Harrison by Mr. Grant for President in 1892, with a pledge that Howard county would give him 1892 majority was received with shouts of applause.

At Amboy.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. AMBOY, Nov. 13. - The south part of Miami county ratified the election of Harrison and Morton at Amboy last night. At Fort Wayne.

Special to the Indianapolis Journa FORT WAYNE, Nov. 13 .- There was not a Democrat to be found in this Gibraltar of Democracy to-night. The Republicans had their jubilee, and it was literally a "howling success." The Republican clubs, of which there were six large organizations, turned out en masse, and with citizens mounted and on foot formed a procession over a mile in length. They marched and counter-marched through muddy streets for three hours, amid the wildest excitement. The streets were packed, and the crowd gave vent to its enthusiasm by firing pistols, rockets and Roman candles, and the whole city was lurid from red fire. Along the whole line of march residences were decorated, and these were greated by the shouting procession. Hundreds of visitors came from neighboring towns to witness celebration, and the occasion called forth more enthusiasm than has yet been exhibited over politics in this city. At this writing (midnight) the streets are still full of yelling Republicaus, and the din of trampets continues unabated.

At Brookville.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. BROOKVILLE, Nov. 13.-The Republicans of Franklin county have been rejoicing and jollifying every day and night since the news reached here that General Harrison was elected, but this has been the best day of all, because the people came in from the out townships with their delegations, bands, glee clubs and tin horns. At 10 o'clock Hon. L. T. Michener addressed the meeting, at the conclusion of which Isaac Corlis, of this place, spoke briefly but forcibly. The Meyens family, one of the very best glee clubs in the State, rendered good music. At night there was a torch-light procession and fire-works. STRIKE OF BRAKEMEN.

Freight Business of the L., N. A. & C. Railway Interfered With by a Strike.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 13.—The brakemen on the Louisville, New Albany & Chicago railroad at this point are on strike, and frieght trains are not running to-day. There has been discontent for several days, and the complaints of the men have been under consideration by the officials. The brakemen ask an increase of pay to 2 cents per mile, the present rate being 1 8-10 and that the company place three brakemen instead of two to each train. About one hundred men on the north and south divisions are idle in consequence. The railroad officials have asked for police protection, claiming they were fearful of damage to property, but the men are orderly. NEW ALBANY, Nov. 13 .- This morning the officials of the Louisville, New Albany & Chicago railway, at this point, were notified that freight trains could not be handled by the brakemen unless their demands were acceded to. The demands in question are for three men on through freight trains, instead of two as at present; two cents per mile for one hundred miles or less; $60 per month for local brakemen, and extra wages for Sunday work. This, the brakemen say, has been asked for, but the company has thus far declined their proposition. Superintendent W. W. Woodard said that he was willing to do what he could in the way of adjusting the differences, and would pay the wages that brakemen received for such services from corporations in the district, which comprises several companies, but he was under the impression that the average wages were being paid. He further said that he had wired Mike Kennedy. chairman of one of the committees at Lafayette, in regard to some hearing in the matter, but up to a late hour had received no reply. It is almost decided that if the matter is not amicably settled the dissatisfied brakemen will be paid off and new men employed. Superintendent Woodard apprehends no serious consequences, and is satisfied that the present strike will not terminate in a blockade.
